Played this at EGX Rezzed 2018 and had a blast. Ive bought this as its entirely worth 4.49 to buy the devs a pint. Theyre great guys (Atleast the two at rezzed were).

Now for the game itself.

There are quirks that really need to be ironed out to make it a little more reliable in terms of feel\physics but this is great start.

As I mentioned at Rezzed, Total wipeout mode isnt featured enough, there could be more side scrolling fun with this. You could add wipeout with tire physics and it would be great! Keep the gangbeast-esque arena fighting though, its great. It just needs to be more fluid. Some suggestions are below.

- Have right stick control the rotation of the wheel. This will allow the forward backward motion of the wheel to be designated to left stick and right stick to control where the wheel points and flips to. Every person can use left and right sticks, its very limited in terms of control currently. This simple addition could make the wheels a lot more controllable. At the moment they feel very stiff or unreliable to maneuver and ram into people with

- Add more abilities. This one is a simple one. The abilities in atm like black hole are too overpowered and dont require any effort really. They especially dont feel great. Possibly have something like sticky tires to make them easier to control, Ice behind the tire to cause others to slide and tacs to cause others to lose full control of their wheels. The game is fun, make the abilities shine here.

- Larger stages. For a tire based game, these stages need to be bigger. You dont get chance to move around properly and actually appreciate the lovely mechanics behind being a wheel. Mainly due to it being hard to control the wheel or even affect the other players. You dont get the chance to hit other people because youre too busy pushing yourself off the edge with the lack of control. A larger surface to really get to know the arena would be great. Possibly have them domed so its like a beyblade arena. This would make it much easier to wizz around the edge and swoop in to deliver a blow. THIS would be fun, square stages just seem a tad out of place for wheels. Curved surfaces pull people into the middle and make it feel better when you drop off due to your own mistakes.

I think these would be nice additions to help the party feel for the game. I love the concept and its why ive bought it. The game is a blast to play as a four. Direct the game into beybladey, total wipeout party fest. Its going great currently and im eager to see where you take it based on feedback :)

Keep it up guys!. Ive had the opportunity to play this with a couple guys and I have to say, this is a really enjoyable game! I do like the pvp nature of it while playing as a tyre in numerous different gamemodes. Things can also definitely get heated in competitive gameplay, making this a good party game to pass the time at different meetings and get together.

The only thing I would really put against this is that there needs to be more single player action. A player vs bots mode would be appreciated as it does then give us the ability to play on our own when away from our friends (a bit of practise hurts nobody eh?

:P)

I do wish you guys the best of luck and I cannot wait to see where development goes in the future!. Wacky, unique and most importantly, really weird.

TYRED is a really charming and zany party game which is bound to have you both laughing and smashing your controller across the head of your buddies.

Plenty of interesting game modes, a lot of nice customisation and fun gameplay. Reccomend.
